I have a little quiz for you.

No.

I want to know what you learned today.

Remember at the beginning I said you were gonna answer this question: Do landforms change?

And you’re gonna make a claim. You’re gonna say yes or no. And you have to give me some evidence.

So you get to do it on this piece of paper. When you get this piece of paper, write your name on it, and wait for directions.

So on here it says, “I think landforms do or do not change.” So I want you to circle the one that you think is correct.

Either circle the words “do,” or circle the words “do not.” Pick one of those to circle.

Okay. You either circle the word “do” or the word “do not.”

Now what I want you to do...you have two sections. You have to give me two pieces of evidence that show me that landforms change. How do you know landforms change?

We talked about it, you read about it

Go. You have about two or three minutes. Go.
